

DIGITAL & MARKETING COMMUNICATIONS IN BUSINESS MARKETS

Introduction

In the world of marketing, communication with the customer is absolutely imperative. In the world of business marketing, or B2B marketing, communication is even more important. And that too bi-directional, without exception. Over the years, the ambit of business markets has expanded from transaction of commodities like steel and cement to more knowledge and service-based offerings like management consulting, banking, etc. As a result, the presence of technically qualified people is growing among the buying decision makers. In such a scenario, the content and techniques for communication become very critical for ensuring customer value. On top of that, the omnipresence of digital media in everyday life, has made B2B marketers reflect into how this new media can be utilized to its fullest.
